

then led by Mayor Al Bobrofsky, selected Mr. Leaders as Battle Creek's City Manager, effective June 1, 1988. Rance served our country in the United States Marine Corp during the Vietnam Conflict and also worked for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development prior to working for the city of Battle Creek.

Tonight's salute, dubbed "Operation Compass," honors an outstanding leader in the community. I wholeheartedly believe that Mr. Leaders is deserving of such recognition for its leading role in revitalizing Battle Creek—the best-known city of its size anywhere in the world.

Mr. Speaker, as you know, I'm pretty proud of Battle Creek. The town, as millions of Americans know, is affectionately called the "Cereal City," because it is the birthplace of modern breakfast cereal. It was once home to over 100 cereal companies and today is home of the world headquarters of the Kellogg Company.

Mr. Leaders has been a key catalyst for many positive changes within the City. He has worked to create better partnerships with regional units of government and most of all among the citizens of Battle Creek. Today, according to some surveys, citizens' trust in city government has risen from 45 percent in 1990 to 83 percent in 1997. One of his favorite sayings might be one any leader should remember—especially here in Congress—"None of us is as smart as all of us."

Rance worked to strengthen Battle Creek's global reputation by working in collaboration with all parties to continue to attract business to Battle Creek's Fort Custer Industrial Park. Most recently, I was honored to join city officials as Western Michigan University opened its elite International Pilot Training Center in Battle Creek to train airplane pilots from all over the world.

Rance also worked on several projects including the Emmett Street overpass, Full Blast, a premier youth recreation facility, removal of the pedestrian mall to increase economic development in the downtown area, and most recently, Kellogg's Cereal City U.S.A., a museum recognizing Battle Creek's breakfast cereal heritage.

I personally have had the pleasure of working closely with Rance Leaders since 1993 when the Department of Defense sought to close several agencies at the Federal Center located in downtown Battle Creek. Rance helped us convince the Department of Defense that the work performed at the facility was cost-effective and at a lower cost than that cited by the federal government. Because of our coalition's efforts, the Federal Center remains in Battle Creek and its operations are expanding.

As other cities have faltered, the transformation that Battle Creek has experienced over the last 10 years is nothing short of miraculous. Rance Leaders deserves much praise and recognition for his accomplishments. And there is so much more that I could highlight. But perhaps it will suffice to say that Rance Leaders truly exemplifies the spirit of Battle Creek, a city that will continue to thrive due in no small part to his efforts.

Mr. Speaker, for all of these reasons, and on behalf of the citizens of Battle Creek, I am very proud to offer this tribute to Rance Leaders, retiring City Manager of Battle Creek, Michigan. I know that Rance enjoys sailing and may take some time to explore other areas of our world. But all of us hope he stays anchored in Battle Creek.

Thank you, Rance, and good luck. Bonnie and I wish you the very best.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. JOSÉ E. SERRANO

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, June 5, 1998

Mr. SERRANO. Mr. Speaker, last evening, I was inadvertently delayed in my office and missed the vote on H. Con. Res. 285, a resolution expressing the sense of Congress that the President should reconsider his decision to be received in Tiananmen Square when he visits the People's Republic of China.

Had I been present, I would have voted against the resolution. I fully believe that if the United States is to exercise leadership in the world and, particularly, to influence other governments to adopt policies we support on issues such as human rights, we must be engaged with those governments. This includes exchanging visits, but a resolution urging the President to insult his hosts by refusing to be received where all national leaders are received comes pretty close to telling the President not to go to China at all.

Indeed, Mr. Speaker, I would go a step farther. China is not the only nation with which we should be engaged. I look forward to the day when our policies toward Cuba will make possible an American President's visit there, and, when that day comes, I will be happy to support a resolution calling on the President to be received in the Plaza of the Revolution in Havana.

TRIBUTE TO RABBI HAROLD AND MALKAH SCHULWEIS

HON. BRAD SHERMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, June 5, 1998

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Rabbi Harold and Malkah Schulweis, two extraordinary individuals who have, throughout their 50 years of married life, dedicated themselves to strengthening our community.

The Talmud tells us that, "Great is charity. It uplifts the soul." By giving selflessly of their time, Rabbi and Mrs. Schulweis have not only enriched the lives of those around them, but they have also strengthened the bond of love that exists and continues to grow between them. They have challenged all of us who live in the San Fernando Valley to live ethical and moral lives, embrace their warm spirituality and their commitment to education and personal growth. For their efforts, Rabbi and Mrs. Schulweis will be honored by Valley Beth Shalom, their temple of over 25 years, as Couple of the Year at the Temple's annual awards gala. This honor is well deserved.

For over 45 years, Rabbi and Mrs. Schulweis have dedicated themselves to teaching others about religion, culture and life in general. Privately, they have created a Jewish home which is caring, compassionate and alive with moral and intellectual dialogue. Publicly, they have "sounded the call," challenging their fellow congregation members to study and share in their love of knowledge.

But this dedication to others has not been bound by temple walls. Together, Rabbi and Mrs. Schulweis have coordinated a number of innovative community outreach programs, among them the Valley Beth Shalom Counseling Center, Food Bank, Prayer and Theological Commission, Day School, and Outreach to Jews By Choice as well as the now national Synagogue Havurah Program. Together, they have opened their hearts to all members of the community, regardless of race, creed, color, or gender. They have been shining examples of love and unconditional acceptance of others in our community. And it is this love between this remarkable couple that I wish to honor today. May their happiness continue to grow as it has through their first 50 years of marriage.

Mr. Speaker, distinguished colleagues, please join me in paying tribute to Rabbi Harold and Malkah Schulweis for their controlled efforts to strengthen our community and the example of love for one another that they continue to set for each and every one of us to follow.

COMMENDING TOM CONLAN

HON. ROB PORTMAN

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, June 5, 1998

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend a leader in the Cincinnati community, Mr. Tom Conlan. On June 15, Tom will receive the Peace of the City Award from the Jewish Community Relations Council of Cincinnati. This award is presented annually to citizens who contribute greatly to the life of their community and whose lives are dedicated to creating a fair, equitable and just society for all.

Throughout his life, Tom has assisted others through his professional career and charitable activities. Tom's professional career has included financial analysis and feasibility of higher education, energy, housing and health care. For example, he has served as executive director of the Ohio Energy Advisory Committee, where he spearheaded the development of the Winter Heating Assistance Program.

Importantly, Tom and his father co-founded Student Loan Funding in 1981, an organization dedicated to ensuring access to higher education in Ohio and throughout the nation. Over the past 17 years, Student Loan funding has helped over 600,000 students achieve their dreams of higher education with more than $4 billion in financial aid.

Most recently, Tom demonstrated his commitment to education through the formation of the Thomas L. Conlan Education Foundation, named after his late father. It is dedicated to supporting education access through grants, research and advocacy. With approximately $100 million in assets, the Foundation will be one of the premier education support organizations in Ohio.

Tom's charitable activities have included service on the Boards of the Hamilton County Alcohol and Drug Addiction Services, the National Underground Railroad Freedom Center, the Queen City Foundation, the Greater Cincinnati Tall Stacks Commission and the Catholic Big Brothers Association of Cincinnati.

The Peace of the City Award is a well-deserved recognition for a man whose efforts have significantly increased educational attainment in Ohio, and whose community involvement has contributed to the quality of life in Greater Cincinnati.

COMMEMORATING 50 YEARS OF RELATIONS BETWEEN THE
UNITED STATES AND THE RE-
PUBLIC OF KOREA, H. RES. 459

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, June 5, 1998

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to introduce today a Resolution commemorating 50 years of relations between the United States and the Republic of Korea. It is right and fitting that the House of Representatives makes note of the special relationship that the United States and the Republic of Korea have shared since 1948—nearly half a century.

The introduction of this Resolution also marks the visit of South Korean President Kim Dae-jung to the United States and to Capitol Hill next week on June 10th where he will address a joint session of the Congress.

I congratulate President Kim and the people of South Korea on the most recent presidential elections and their strong commitment to democratic principles and practices. President Kim's visit provides a unique opportunity for the United States and the Republic of Korea to renew their commitment to cooperate on issues of mutual interest and concern.

Though the United States and South Korea are literally an ocean apart, the large Korean-American community—of almost two million—has immeasurably enriched the social and cultural fabric of the United States and serves as a sturdy bridge of friendship between the two countries.

The United States has important strategic, economic and political interests at stake in Northeast Asia and maintaining stability remains an overriding U.S. security concern in the region. South Korean soldiers have stood shoulder to shoulder with American troops on the battlefields of Korea and Vietnam to protect and advance these mutual interests.

Today, South Korea remains an important partner and ally in guarding the peace and maintaining stability in Northeast Asia. To support these objectives, 37,000 American servicemen and women are stationed in South Korea protecting freedom and democracy which is threatened on a daily basis by the communist government and armed forces of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK).

The United States is pleased with the flourishing of democracy in South Korea. It is hoped that the Republic of Korea will serve as an example to others in the region and will encourage progress in the furthering of democratic principles and practices, respect for human rights, and the enhancement of the rule of law.

I am confident that despite current economic uncertainties, the Republic of Korea will weather the troubles plaguing Asia and emerge even stronger than before.

The Congress looks forward to a broadening and deepening of friendship and cooperation with the Republic of Korea in the years ahead for the mutual benefit of the peoples of the United States and the Republic of Korea.

I am pleased to have this opportunity to introduce the legislation and I invite my colleagues in the House of Representatives to support this Resolution commemorating the distinctive ties between the peoples and the governments of these two great nations.

I include the entire text of H. Res. 459 for insertion at this point in the RECORD:

H. RES. 459

Whereas the Republic of Korea was established 50 years ago on August 15, 1948;

Whereas the United States and the Republic of Korea have long had a close relationship based on mutual respect, shared security goals, and common interests and values;

Whereas the United States relies on the Republic of Korea as a partner and treaty ally in fostering regional stability, enhancing prosperity, and promoting peace and democracy;

Whereas the American military personnel who are, and have been, stationed on the Korean Peninsula have been key in deterring armed aggression for more than 4 decades;

Whereas South Korean soldiers fought alongside American troops on the battlefields of Korea and Vietnam;

Whereas the Republic of Korea has embraced economic reform and free market principles in response to current economic circumstances;

Whereas the Republic of Korea is an important trading partner of the United States, the recipient of significant direct American investment, and a prominent investor in the United States;

Whereas the large Korean-American community has made significant contributions to American society and culture;

Whereas the people of the Republic of Korea have demonstrated their strong commitment to democratic principles and practices through free and fair elections; and

Whereas the state visit of President Kim Dae-jung to the United States offers the people of the United States and the people of South Korea an opportunity to renew their commitment to international cooperation on issues of mutual interest and concern: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives—

(1) congratulates the Republic of Korea on the 50th anniversary of its founding;

(2) commends the people of the Republic of Korea on the peaceful democratic transition that has taken place during the most recent Presidential elections;

(3) supports the government of President Kim Dae-jung as it takes appropriate measures to address the problems in the Korean economy;

(4) confirms that the question of peace, security, and reunification on the Korean Peninsula is, first and foremost, a matter for the Korean people to decide and that the Four-Party Peace Talks complement direct North-South dialog; and

(5) looks forward to a broadening and deepening of friendship and cooperation with the Republic of Korea in the years ahead for the mutual benefit of the people of the United States and the people of the Republic of Korea.

REMEMBERING THE LIFE AND COMMITMENT OF ROBERT F.
KENNEDY ON THE 30TH ANNI-VERSARY OF HIS DEATH

HON. TOM LANTOS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I invite my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to the memory of one of our Nation's most compassionate and principled leaders—Robert Francis Kennedy, who was assassinated thirty years ago today. He served our country as Attorney General and United States Senator, but his legacy cannot be measured by mere titles and offices; rather, his greatness can only be understood by understanding the uncompromising morality of his political philosophy, his devotion to the most downtrodden in our society, and the intellectual eloquence of his efforts to communicate their needs to the rest of the American community.

Robert F. Kennedy believed that one person, standing alone and guided only by the courage of his or her convictions, could move metaphorical mountains. His inspirational words to the oppressed black people of South Africa, spoken 32 years ago today, capture this spirit. They apply not just to those who were fighting against the brutal racism of apartheid, but to all of us. These words apply in particular to the life of Robert F. Kennedy.

Few will have the greatness to bend history itself; but each of us can work to change a small portion of events, and in the total of all those acts will be written the history of this generation. * * * It is from numberless diverse acts of courage and belief that human history is shaped. Each time a man stands up for an ideal, or acts to improve the lot of others, or strikes out against injustice, he sends a tiny ripple of hope, and crossing each other from a million different centers of energy and daring those ripples build a current which can sweep down the mightiest walls of oppression and resistance.

Robert F. Kennedy rode the crest of an immense wave, serving as the nucleus of so many great progressive causes that marked the 1960's and helped mold a more just society, one less encumbered by bigotry, poverty, and apathy. His numerous lofty causes reflected these high ideals.

Senator Kennedy fought for civil rights with a moral intensity rarely matched by the most legendary of noble crusaders. During his visit to South Africa, a land fractured by the scourge of apartheid, he addressed the most controversial questions with the absolute certainty of a man driven by the righteous rectitude of his cause. When asked at the University of Witwatersrand to respond to charges that blacks were too barbarous to be entrusted with power, he replied: "It was not the black man of Africa who invented and used poison gas and the atomic bomb, who sent six million men and women and children to the gas ovens." He condemned the race-baiting leaders of South Africa to their faces, leaving no doubt about the moral degeneracy of their policies.

Robert F. Kennedy's quest for human rights was felt most strongly by his own countrymen. As Attorney General, he did not hesitate to stare down Southern governors who attempted to curry favor with the Ku Klux Klan
